

SUR 107: Surgical Anatomy and Physiology

This course is an overview of surgical anatomy and pathophysiology. Emphasis is placed on the organizational structure of the body, organ systems, relevant surgical pathophysiology, and related medical terminology. Upon completion, the student should be able to apply knowledge of anatomy in the clinical environment.

Credits: 3

Lab Hours: 0

Lecture Hours: 3
0

Prerequisites:

Admission to the Surgical Technology program and BIO 103, BIO 201, ENG 101, MTH 100, ORI 101, and Humanities Elective.